The Frayer Model

The Frayer Model is a form of concept map that provides directions and boundaries to the concept or term used. This specific model is designed to help students that may not be used to developing their own concept maps.

The concept or key term has to be identified by the educator and the students develop their own definition, characteristics, examples and non-examples. It is important to give the students time to reflect on and either change or add information as a reflection after their Museum experience.
